Aggregate tables presenting the 2017 Public Service Employee Survey results for the entire public service, as well as for individual federal departments, are now available.

The primary objective of the survey is to obtain the views of federal public service employees about their engagement, workforce, workplace, and leadership. The survey results highlight where the public service is doing well, and help identify areas for improvement. The results are used by individual departments to develop informed action plans to strengthen both the workforce and the workplace. This survey was sponsored by the Treasury Board of Canada Secretariat.
